How to set up a bluetooth on a device

Bluetooth works with radio waves rather than cables and wires. It works with a "master" device and then"slaves" that tag onto it. As an example, a computer would be the "master" device and your mouse, earphones, keyboard would all be the slave devices.

If you want to bluetooth a device, the way to start is going into settings and finding the bluetooth option, or look at the top left or right of your computer screen and find this icon

You need to ensure both devices have bluetooth turned on.

Each device will have a name, it could be "iPhone" or the make and/or model of the device you are using.

The name of the device you are trying to pair should come up in your list of found devices, press the device you are pairing to and you are paired.

Happy Bluetoothing!
